TAPESCRIPT

Wallace and Gromit were created by Nick Park. His animated films introduce audiences to a hilarious new world of discovery and invention seen through the eyes of the two main characters. Wallace and Gromit are both extremely likeable and they have quite a lot in common considering that one is a man and the other a dog. They are both fond of food. Wallace's favourite is cheese and Gromit's cornflakes, and they both love a nice cup of tea. Wallace is very skilled at inventing things, although his inventions are not always successful, and Nick Park's stories are usually based on one of his latest inventions, like a rocket to the moon. Gromit's hobbies are quite different. He likes knitting and reading the newspaper. As far as personality goes, Wallace is good natured, although he is perhaps a little over-optimistic. Gromit, on the other hand, is sensitive, intelligent and resourceful.

TAPESCRIPT

In their first adventure on film, Wallace and his sophisticated dog Gromit were trying to decide where to go for their annual picnic holiday. As far as food goes, cheese is Wallace's speciality – so it didn't take them long to make up their minds. Wallace's skill at inventing things and Gromit's hard work meant that they were soon blasting off in a home-made rocket and heading for the moon, which they were convinced was made of cheese.

They landed successfully and began to eat a hearty meal of the moon's surface but they were unable to decide what kind of cheese the moon was made of. During their moon-tasting expedition, they came across what looked like a small cooker. It turned out to be the moon's resident caretaker. The caretaker was understandably angry at the way Wallace and Gromit were taking cheese from the moon, but, in the conflict that followed, Wallace and Gromit accidentally helped the caretaker to fulfil his greatest dream. He had always wanted to ski and, as the home-made rocket took off, with the caretaker still holding onto it, two pieces of metal came off in the caretaker's hands. The caretaker made them into a pair of skis and was skiing happily over the mountains of the moon as the rocket took the two heroes back to earth.
